My dear Mr Garrison

<sup>140</sup> Tuesday & the hour you mention will suit us all in every way. The carriage will meet the train you name and should Mr Garrison feel inclined for a drive we can go for an hour through some of our pretty lanes here, before tea-dinner at half past six.

I do not know whether it may have fallen under his eye & so mention, that there is a very excellent & appreciative notice of Miss Carpenter in this week's Spectator which your father may like to see. It speaks very nicely of the great extent of her work &

The beautiful sunset gives that impression of

I will be very glad to see to see you again I think the first acquaintance before to say that this the same way for my hope the light

Believe me very truly your friend

Yours forever
J. J. Foxworth

the beautifully unostentatious spirit that inspired it.

It will be very pleasant to me to meet you again I knew the short acquaintance began so long ago in days that now seem very far away. though very bright!

Believe me yours
Very sincerely
Agnes Weston.
